Air Astana, the Skytrax award-winning national carrier of Kazakhstan, is pleased to offer new through flights to Tashkent, Uzbekistan via its Astana hub from London Heathrow, Frankfurt and Paris CDG from the start of its summer schedule on 29th March 2019.

Tashkent flights originating from London Heathrow will run three times weekly; from Frankfurt four times per week and twice a week from Paris.

Timings have been optimized for seamless and convenient transfers to Tashkent through Astana's newly completed airport terminal. Flights are already available now to purchase from www.airastana.com or from Air Astana's ticketing offices.

Richard Ledger, Vice President Marketing and Sales, Air Astana, commented: "We are delighted to be able to offer this twice weekly service to Tashkent from three of our European departure airports on what we believe will be a highly popular route. Interest in the Silk Road destinations continues to grow and the addition of Tashkent offers passengers the perfect opportunity to combine a visit to Kazakhstan with Uzbekistan to further explore the region's fascinating history."
