

VUELING A320 AT TURIN ON DEC. 1, 2015, REJECTED TAKEOFF DUE TO BIRD STRIKE

News / Airlines

A Vueling Airlines Airbus A320-200, registration EC-MBY performing flight VY-6515 from Turin (Italy) to Barcelona, SP (Spain), was accelerating for takeoff from runway 36 when the right hand engine (CFM56) ingested a bird prompting the crew to reject takeoff. The aircraft slowed safely and returned to the apron.

A replacement Airbus A320-200 registration EC-JSY was dispatched to Turin, performed the flight and reached Barcelona with a delay of 6 hours.

The occurrence aircraft is still on the ground in Turin 36 hours after rejecting takeoff.

03 DECEMBER 2015

SOURCE: THE AVIATION HERALD

ARTICLE LINK:

<https://virginia.50skyshades.com/news/airlines/vueling-a320-at-turin-on-dec-1-2015-rejected-takeoff-due-to-bird-strike>