

CHARTERPAD TO UNVEIL NEW BRANDING AT REVOLUTION.AERO

News / Business aviation

When the CharterPad team voyages across the Atlantic for Revolution.Aero Europe next week, we will be arriving with a new image following the company's first rebranding since it was founded in 2011.

Headquartered in Miami, Florida, CharterPad is a dynamic charter platform designed by the charter professional, for the charter professional.

This modern platform supports charter activities for aviation players across the industry, including charter brokers, operators and FBOs. In addition to creating connections among these professionals, CharterPad also facilitates flight tracking, aircraft search, weather analysis, airport location and trip analysis services under one user-friendly interface.

The company's new identity comes closely after CharterPad's recent acquisition by global aviation services provider Click Aviation Network. The rebranding is aimed at highlighting the platform's advancement into the modern age and upcoming digital enhancements.

CharterPad's President, Armando Antonini, has run this B2B charter portal for the last five years, transforming it from a start-up into one of the most successful systems of its kind. Armando's wealth of experience in sales and marketing drove the concept of a proactive trip matching system to source aircraft for charter needs. In the spirit of the company's vision to provide a one-stop shop from sourcing to booking to ancillary services, he helped facilitate CharterPad's acquisition and expansion beyond the United States.
