News / Business aviation

GainJet Aviation has added a new long range executive jet to its fleet, adding a third Bombardier Challenger aircraft, a CL605. The aircraft, registration SX-SHC, was delivered on 15 April 2016, and it is available for charter based between Amman, Jordan and Athens, Greece.

The CL605 can carry 12 passengers. The cabin features four individual VIP seats, a club-four dining seating area, and a four-seater sofa.

Captain Ramsey Shaban, president of GainJet, said: “We’re basing the aircraft between Athens and Amman, because we feel there is demand for such an aircraft, which is operated by a European carrier that provides top of the line services.”

SX-SHC joins a diverse fleet at GainJet. The company’s fleet features several executive jets available for charter including Gulfstream G650, G550, G450, Embraer Legacy 600, and Bombardier Challenger 604s, plus several executive airliners, including a VIP Boeing 757-200 with 62 VIP seats and a stateroom and a VIP Boeing 737-400 with 64 VIP seats.
