airline recruiters, reinforcing ATP's airline-backed Career Tracks™ pathway.

The event reflects ATP's broader commitment to long-term alumni success. Through the ATP Alumni Association, the company has invested more than $460,000 in career support and professional development initiatives for graduates since the start of 2025.

Michael Arnold, Vice President of Marketing, ATP Flight School commented: "ATP's investment in its graduates extends beyond flight training and well into their airline careers. Through the ATP Alumni Association, we're expanding access to advanced training, interview preparation, industry events and direct airline connections that help graduates secure airline pilot jobs."

In 2026, ATP doubled the number of sponsored aviation conference passes available to alumni and instructors, creating additional opportunities to connect with recruiters, industry leaders and professional networks. The school also continues to award a fully sponsored ATP CTP and A320 Type Rating each quarter, helping alumni build qualifications for airline careers.

To further support career advancement, ATP expanded its partnership with Spitfire Elite to offer discounted and fully sponsored interview preparation. The initiative has also provided targeted assistance to displaced Spirit Airlines pilots seeking new opportunities across the airline industry.
