European Flyers has officially taken delivery of its first Tecnam P2010 TDI, inaugurating a forward-looking fleet renewal plan that will see twelve new Tecnam aircraft join Spain's premier pilot training organization. The arrival of the Tecnam P2010 TDI significantly elevates European Flyers' training capabilities, giving students hands-on access to modern avionics and systems that mirror the cockpit environments they will encounter throughout their airline careers. The aircraft offers a spacious four-seat layout, an integrated autopilot, and the advanced Garmin G1000 NXi glass cockpit.

The P2010 TDI is set to deliver a decisive enhancement in the academy's operational performance. Equipped with the advanced Continental CD-170 engine operating on JET A1 fuel, the aircraft reinforces European Flyers' sustainability commitments by achieving substantially lower fuel consumption and markedly reduced carbon emissions. The partnership with Tecnam also ensures the seamless integration of the new fleet by providing specialized technical training for European Flyers' maintenance teams. This dedicated program secures the long-term reliability, safety, and efficient operation of the 12 incoming aircraft.

Luis Miñano, Director General of European Flyers commented: "This acquisition reflects our commitment to the continuous improvement of training quality and to strengthening European Flyers as a benchmark in pilot training."

Alvaro La Petra, Authorized Tecnam Dealer in Spain stated: "We are incredibly proud to support European Flyers in this ambitious fleet renewal program. Delivering the P2010 TDI to such a prestigious and historic academy underscores the unmatched value, safety, and efficiency that Tecnam aircraft bring to the Spanish flight training market. We look forward to working closely with their team as the remaining aircraft join the fleet."

Walter da Costa, Chief Sales Officer at Tecnam, said: "Spain is one of the most vibrant and important regions for Tecnam in Europe, and our footprint here has never been stronger. European Flyers is an absolute leader in aviation education. Their decision to renew their fleet with 12 Tecnam P2010 TDI aircraft is a testament to the reliability, innovation, and sustainability our platforms deliver to top-tier academies globally. We are honored to be their partner for the future."

The delivery was expertly facilitated by Tecnam's local network, reflecting the manufacturer's deep commitment to supporting Spanish flight schools.
