

ANRA TECHNOLOGIES FORMS STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP WITH FLYBY GUYS

News / Manufacturer

ANRA Technologies announced a strategic partnership with Flyby Guys, a leader in enterprise drone services. This collaboration is set to enhance ANRA capabilities in providing cutting-edge airspace management and operational services across Europe and beyond. With a strong presence in the U.S., India, the UK, and Europe, ANRA Technologies has established itself as a leader in UTM, offering comprehensive solutions for airspace management, data services, and enterprise support. The partnership with Flyby Guys marks a significant milestone in ANRA's expansion strategy, particularly in the European market.

Stephen Sutton, CEO of Flyby Guys commented: "We are thrilled to partner with ANRA Technologies. Our combined expertise will enable us to push the boundaries of what's possible in drone operations and UTM services. We look forward to working together to shape the future of the drone industry in Europe and beyond."

Amit Ganjoo, CEO of ANRA Technologies stated: "Collaborating with Flyby Guys is an important step in our strategy to expand our footprint in Europe. Their operational excellence and deep understanding of the global drone landscape perfectly complement our mission to deliver world-class UTM solutions. Together, we are poised to lead the way in transforming airspace management and drone operations across the region."

Flyby Guys, headquartered in Helsinki, Finland, has built a strong reputation as a premier drone operator with extensive global experience. Their operations span across Asia, the Middle East, Africa, and Europe, providing unparalleled drone operations and project management expertise. This partnership will leverage Flyby Guys' vast operational experience to bolster ANRA's mission of advancing U-space technology and drone services across Europe.

This strategic alliance will empower both companies to deliver innovative solutions, ensuring the safe and efficient integration of drones into European airspace while setting new standards for operational excellence.
