

BELL HELICOPTER OPENS NEW OFFICE IN MEXICO

News / Manufacturer

Bell Helicopter, a Textron Inc. company, announced today the grand opening of its new sales office based in Mexico City, where the company will support local and regional customers.

Many state and federal officials, as well as long-standing customers, joined Bell Helicopter's Executive Vice President of Commercial Business, Matt Hasik, for a reception at the site of the new office in the Torre Mayor Complex.

"Bell Helicopter has been and remains a major player in both the aviation and industrial sectors within Mexico," said Hasik. "The opening of this office supports our existing customer base and is a key part of our ongoing expansion efforts throughout the country. Our increased presence in Mexico is yet another example of how we continue to put in motion our strategy of being closer to our customers, no matter where they are in the world, and providing the superior customer service we are known for."

Bell Helicopter has a rich history in Mexico, which started more than 50 years ago with the delivery of the first aircraft to the region. Bell Helicopter's footprint spans two Customer Service facilities, in addition to the manufacturing facility based in Chihuahua and the new addition of the sales office in Mexico City. Under Bell Helicopter's parent company, Textron, also maintains six additional service and manufacturing facilities throughout the country.

There are more than 500 commercial and military Bell aircraft operating throughout Mexico in a range of missions including corporate and VIP transport, oil and gas, and general/utility operations. All of the aircraft are backed by Bell Helicopter's superior customer support and service, as rated by our global customer base in multiple industry surveys.

"We want to thank our customers for their continued loyalty, and we look forward to bringing a new level of local service to meet the growing demand in Mexico," added Hasik.
